Welcome to Natchez! The oldest continuous settlement on the Mississippi River and also one of Life Magazine’s 100 places to see in your lifetime. Step back into time with true southern hospitality featuring antebellum mansions and explore the many treasures of the hometown of Mississippi author Greg Iles.

This year’s theme, “Mississippi Libraries: Stronger Together” chosen by Vice-President Molly McManus, is a perfect example of the energizing sessions planned for the diverse types of libraries in our state—academic, public, school and special libraries. Mark your calendar to attend the first General Session for MLA short business meeting followed by keynote speaker Josh Hanagarne, the World’s Strongest Librarian. From the Presidential Bash at the Magnolia Hall mansion—a fine example of Greek Revival architecture—to the 50th Celebration of the Library Science Master’s Program at the University of Southern Mississippi, there is a program to attract each library attendee. A new component to help everyone stay on schedule this year is the MLA Conference app created by Boopsie, one of our library vendors.

Since January the MLA Executive Board and I have been very busy implementing new and improved policies and procedures by updating the 97 page MLA Handbook. For the first time, thanks to our web committee chair, Jennifer Nabzdyk Todd, MLA members are now able to vote online, and numerous improvements have been made to the website. In February, a team of MLA members met with our U.S. Congressmen in Washington to discuss the importance of school librarians and broadband connectivity issues for Mississippi libraries. Also during the month of February librarians descended upon the state capitol for MLA Pie Day and conversed with state legislators to discuss a statewide fiber network. Several MLA members attended ALA Midwinter in Chicago in January as well as ALA in San Francisco in June, bringing new innovative ideas back to the state of Mississippi. For the first time, MLA sponsored a booth at the USM Children’s Book Festival in April for over 400 participants. One of the exciting additions to the association is the availability of a new ALA-MLA Joint Student Membership category available for students. The MLA Executive Board has also invested in imprinted items to promote the association at various events across the state. In August a welcome by John Grisham greeted MLA members who were excited to volunteer and attend the first Mississippi Book Festival at the state capitol. Plans are underway for MLA to have a booth at the festival next year.

Stop by and visit with Jennifer Stephenson, Exhibits Chair, and the library vendors who will be joining us in Natchez for the ribbon cutting on Wednesday at 11:30 a.m. I encourage you to join me in donating items to the MLA Silent Auction, benefitting the Peggy May and Virgina Brocks-Shedd Scholarships co-chaired by Lori Barnes and Courtney Thomas on Wednesday and Thursday. I hope to see you at the most popularly attended event of the conference—the MLA Authors Award Ceremony on Thursday evening. Be sure to follow the new Pinterest page, as well as the Facebook and Twitter pages, coordinated by Publicity Chair Antoinette Giamalva and use the hashtag, #MLAStronger for conference photos. If I can be of any assistance while you are in Natchez, please contact me at (601) 735-8911. Best wishes for a successful conference!

Sincerely,

Patsy Brewer
MLA President
Welcome to MLA 2015. It is great to be back in historic Natchez and we want to thank the City of Natchez for once again making us welcome. The staff at Natchez Convention Center and Visit Natchez have done a wonderful job helping us prepare for our conference.

The conference theme this year is Stronger Together. The MLA Annual Conference serves as the meeting point for all library and information professionals, from all sectors of libraries in Mississippi. The conference this year focuses on ways in which libraries of all types can work together towards a shared goal and provides development and networking opportunities for us to become stronger as professionals.

There are over 70 programs to choose from on a wide variety of topics and I want to thank each of our speakers for taking the time to prepare presentations and attend our conference. Our featured speakers, brought in by the sections and roundtables, are listed on the pages to follow. We are lucky to be able to bring in three General Session Speakers this year. Be sure not to miss Josh Hanagarne – World’s Strongest Librarian, Todd Bol – Little Free Library, and Michelle Frisque - Chief, Technology, Content and Innovation at Chicago Public Library.

The MLA conference is partially funded by the federal Library Services and Technology Act administered by the Mississippi Library Commission for the Institute of Museum and Library Services. We would not be able to bring in the nationally recognized speakers that are featured this week without this funding and the support of our generous sponsors and exhibitors. At a time when many vendors are reducing their sponsorship, travel and exhibit budgets, these vendors make Mississippi libraries a priority. I encourage you to visit with each one of them, learn something about their products and thank them for their participation. Sponsors and exhibitors are listed in the back of this program.

The MLA executive board, section and roundtable chairs listed on the next page have dedicated many hours to the planning and coordination of this conference and I thank them for their hard work. I’d also like to thank the conference committee chairs Jennifer Nabzdyk Todd, Jennifer Stephenson, Lacy Ellinwood and Michele Frasier-Robinson for their work, ideas and energy. Special thanks also go to our local arrangements committee Beth Richard, Wendy Cartwright and Pam Plummer, and to Barbara Price, our MLA administrator. Antoinette Giamalva, our publicity committee chair did a wonderful job spearheading our conference social media efforts. Finally, a very special thanks to Patsy Brewer, MLA President, who has been very generous with her time and support throughout this year. Our association is very lucky to have her serving as President.

If you have any suggestions for next year’s conference, please fill out the conference evaluation form which will be posted on the MLA website. Have a great conference everyone!

Molly McManus,
MLA Vice-President

FICTION WINNER

CAREY RICHARD
Carey is a bit of a roamer, but as Tolkien said, “Not all who wander are lost.” He has traveled in 47 countries, much of that well off the beaten path. He spends about half of each year overseas. He loves cycling, backpacking, kayaking, skating, and anything outdoors. His wide-ranging life experience has given him a unique perspective that is sometimes beautiful, sometimes gritty, sometimes insightful... always a little moonstruck.

YOUTH NON-FICTION WINNER

CAROLYN J. BROWN
Carolyn is a writer, editor, and independent scholar. She attended Duke University and then the University of North Carolina-Greensboro for her Master’s and Ph.D. She published her second biography, Song of My Life: A Biography of Margaret Walker, in November 2014. She lives in Jackson, Mississippi, with her husband and two sons.

NON-FICTION WINNER

JOHN HAILMAN
Hailman Oxford, Mississippi, was a federal prosecutor at the U.S. Attorney’s office in Oxford for thirty-three years and was an inaugural Overby Fellow in journalism at the University of Mississippi. Hailman now teaches trial practice and law and literature at the University of Mississippi Law School, where he has been an adjunct professor for over 25 years.

GENERAL SESSION SPEAKERS

JOSH HANAGARNE
WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 21ST
1:00-2:30
NATCHEZ ROOM

An extreme case of Tourette syndrome has done little to slow down Salt Lake City librarian Josh Hanagarne, author of The World's Strongest Librarian. After faith and family, he credits books and weightlifting—adopted to control his tics—as his salvation. Join us as Hanagarne shares his incredible story.

TODD BOL
LITTLE FREE LIBRARY
THURSDAY OCTOBER 22ND
10:30-11:30
NATCHEZ ROOM

Todd H. Bol created the very first Little Free Library – a front-yard book exchange – in 2009 to share books with his neighbors. After seeing the community’s positive reaction to the miniature library, Bol built 30 more and gave them away to a broad range of neighborhoods. The response was so overwhelming that Bol crafted a vision for a community-led grassroots movement. Little Free Libraries now stand in front yards all across the globe – from Iceland to Pakistan to Tasmania – strengthening neighborhoods, spreading literacy and the love of reading, and bringing people together. Sponsored by the MLA Special Libraries Section

MICHELLE FRISQUE
CHIEF, TECHNOLOGY, CONTENT AND INNOVATION
CHICAGO PUBLIC LIBRARY
THURSDAY OCTOBER 22ND- 1:30-2:30
NATCHEZ ROOM

In an effort to close the digital divide and address the lack of broadband access among low-income residents, Chicago Public Library’s “Internet to Go” service allow patrons to check out and take home WiFi hotspots. This program will describe the approaches CPL took to attack the problem of the digital divide, provide an update on that program, discuss lessons learned, plans for the future and describe other solutions libraries are taking to increase their patrons’ use of the internet.

MATTHEW GUINN

The Scribe is the latest work by Matthew Guinn. On the eve of Atlanta’s 1881 International Cotton Exposition, disgraced former detective Thomas Canby is called back to the city to track a serial murderer who seems to be targeting its wealthiest black entrepreneurs.

A native of Atlanta, Matthew Guinn earned a BA in English from the University of Georgia. He continued graduate school at the University of Mississippi, where he met his wife Kristen and completed a master’s degree. At the University of South Carolina, where he earned a Ph.D. in English, he was personal assistant to the late James Dickey. In addition to the Universities of Mississippi and South Carolina, he has taught at the University of Alabama at Birmingham and at Tulane University’s School of Continuing Studies in Madison, Mississippi. Matthew and Kristen live in Jackson, Mississippi, with their two children, Braiden and Phoebe.

JAMIE KORNEGAY

Jamie Kornegay lives in the Mississippi Delta, where he moved in 2006 to establish an independent bookstore, Turnrow Book Co. Before that he was a bookseller, events coordinator, and radio show producer at the famous Square Books in Oxford, Mississippi. He studied creative fiction under Barry Hannah at the University of Mississippi. Soil is his first novel.

Soil is the fictional story of an environmental scientist, Jay Mize. With elements of rural noir, dark comedy and domestic dysfunction, Soil is a modern tragedy that pays homage to Mississippi’s great literary tradition — from William Faulkner to Larry Brown and Barry Hannah — and adds a manic dose of Dostoevsky’s Crime and Punishment for good measure.
Local independent bookstore Turning Pages is selling books at many of our author events.

Be sure to visit them while you are in Natchez: 520 Franklin Street, Natchez, MS 39120

Jaena Alabi is the English & Psychology librarian at Auburn University's Ralph Brown Draughon Library. After earning an MA in English and an MLIS from the University of Alabama, she served as the English librarian at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis. Her research currently focuses on diversity in the profession, specifically the role of racial microaggressions in the recruitment, retention, and promotion of academic librarians of color.

Judy Card served as Youth Services Coordinator for First Regional Library for eight years. She has also been a Children’s Librarian for two branch libraries, directed an Adult Literacy Project, worked as Staff Development Officer for Memphis Public Library, and is currently Assistant to the Director at FRL. She serves on the Board of the Magnolia Children’s Choice Awards and is a storyteller who has performed at many schools and community festivals.

Venetia Oglesby has served as librarian at New Hope Elementary School in Columbus, MS for fifteen years. She achieved National Board Certification in Library Media in 2010. She served as the MLA School Section Chair from 2011 - 2013. Venetia was a member of the K-2 Magnolia Children’s Choice Book Award selection committee for 2012 and 2013 and is currently serving as vice-president of the Magnolia Award’s Executive Board. She is passionate about advocating for the vital role of school librarians in today’s educational communities and is currently working with state leaders from MDE and MLA to organize the Mississippi Association of School Librarians (MsASL).

Mary Seratt worked for Memphis Public Library for 19 years until her retirement in April of 2014. She came to the library to begin the innovative mobile service to day care centers- Training Wheels. Prior to her work at the library, she worked at the University of Memphis’ Lipman Early Childhood School and Research Institute as a Supervising Teacher and Interim Director. Before that, she taught special education classes in the public schools. She’s taught every age, from preschool to graduate school. Currently, she is a Fulbright Senior Specialist, and she volunteers with a non-profit that works on health and literacy projects in the Indian Himalayas, teaching teachers and installing community libraries in remote village schools. She is a member of the American Library Association, the International Relations Roundtable and the Association of Library Services to Children. She has been on the Foster Grandparent Advisory Council for over 15 years, and is currently elected Chair of the Board of Directors at Porter Leath in Memphis.
Featured Speakers

Tommie Mabry
Black Caucus of ALA Featured Speaker
Thursday 12:00-2:00
Tupelo Room

The Black Caucus of ALA luncheon speaker is Tommie Mabry, Author and CEO of Tommie Mabry Company. Mr. Mabry is a native of Jackson, Mississippi. During most of his youth, Tommie was in and out of detention centers and credits being shot as the wake-up call that forced him towards the right path. It was during this time that he discovered his passion for basketball. As a result of an increase of positive role models, such as actor Tommy Ford from the TV show Martin, Tommie became a mature and respectful man of integrity. Tommie graduated from Tougaloo College in May 2011 with a degree in education and went on to teach at Whitten Middle School. His first book, A Dark Journey to a Light Future was published in 2012. His second book, If Tommie Can Do It, We can Do It, is a children’s book which was published in 2015. You can find more information about Mr. Mabry at http://tommiemabry.com.

VISIT OLD SOUTH TRADING POST IN THE EXHIBIT HALL FOR NATCHEZ GIFTS AND TREATS
Assessing Collection Development and Acquisitions at the Millsaps-Wilson Library: Jamie Wilson, Millsaps College

The Millsaps-Wilson Library staff sought a way to ensure that collection development and acquisitions accurately reflected the curriculum at Millsaps College. Acquisitions from a five-year period were analyzed through a variety of methods. This poster will explain how acquisitions were analyzed, reports that were used, issues that arose during the process and conclusions based on the analysis.

Digital Wallpaper, Digital Community: S. Shake DeLozier, Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College

Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College consists of three main campuses and six satellite sites: each campus houses its own library. Having recently acquired the OverDrive eBook and audio book service, the question remained about how to promote the service equally on all three campuses. Enter digital wallpaper. Blending “old school” graphic design (encapsulated with removable and reusable wallpaper decal) with modern day technology (downloadable eBooks via QR codes), the wallpaper serves as an exciting visual to faculty, staff and students. Working in collaboration, the libraries developed digital wallpaper themes that rotated among the campuses keeping displays fresh and the printing cost low.

Families Read First: A Community Literacy Project: Ryda Worthy, South Mississippi Regional Library System

Families Read First is a family reading initiative designed and implemented by the South Mississippi Regional Library System to encourage families to spend time together reading. The goals of the project are to educate parents and caregivers on the importance of reading to children at an early age and to provide families with the skills and resources needed to establish positive reading habits in their own households. The initiative includes Family Saturday Storytimes featuring parent/child activity time, resources for families to use at home, and free books for participants. Originally funded in 2013 by the U.S. Institute of Museum and Library Services and the Mississippi Library Commission, this project is now made possible through community partnerships. The project began with five community partnerships, has since added two new partners, and has plans to partner with a dozen more community businesses and organization over the coming year. The community partners contribute to the project in a variety of ways: financial funding, support of the project's goals and mission, and dissemination of project information. These partnerships strengthen the project and will allow the initiative to broaden its goals, over the course of the next year, to include training sessions for local early childhood educators and a family oriented One Book, One Community program featuring a children’s book.

Focus on Popularity for Programming: “Downton Abbey” and the Turn Back the Clock to the 1910’s Series: Heather Lawson and the Hernando Public Library Staff, First Regional Library System

Focusing on very popular television shows is a safe way to guarantee good attendance with any programs, and an increase in circulation with many related displays. “Downton Abbey’s” popularity cannot be denied, so relating a series of programs to this TV series and the 1910’s was easy. Drawings for “Downton Abbey” t-shirts at each event sparked even more interest.
Wednesday’s Poster Sessions Continued ...

Forming A “Universe” Alliance: How To Get Support In A University: Antoinette Giamalva, Madison County Library System

An academic library is only as strong as its alliance with their university. Academic libraries in general play diverse parts in their community. The libraries are either a hub for community members to come and use their materials, a place for students to go study and use their resources, or a place for collaboration with professors of all majors to gain resources for what they need to stay accredited and advanced in the latest methods. This poster session will show different ways of strengthening your academic library and getting strong support, ranging from collaboration, outreach programs, liaisons, social media, and public relations.

Mississippi Challenged Books Index: Ally Watkins, Mississippi Library Commission

A new project from the Mississippi Library Commission: The Mississippi Challenged Books Index. Libraries will report challenges/reconsideration requests of library materials to MLC through the index website. MCBI will compile the challenges so that libraries can see what is being challenged in other communities and how the challenges have been handled.

Partnering to Preserve Voices of the Past: Leah Rials, University of Southern Mississippi

University Libraries’ Digital Collections is partnering with the Center for Oral History and Cultural Heritage to work on a National Endowment for the Humanities funded grant. This grant will preserve over 400 analog oral histories from the civil rights movement and make the interviews available online. This poster will highlight the grant’s workflow including responsibilities, timeline, and technical specifications. The grant promotes collaboration between USM’s Center for Oral History and Cultural Heritage, Digital Collections, and University Libraries’ Cataloging department. This project is aimed to be completed by September 2016.

Pass me my feather boa, it’s time for the morale committee meeting! : Heather Dungey, Hancock County Library System

How do you raise staff morale? Everybody would love a raise, but when funds are tight that’s not always possible. See how Hancock County Library System boosted morale over 2 years with practical, fun, and inexpensive strategies.

Thursday’s Poster Sessions

Benefits of a Social Services Coalition: Jesse Pool and Barbara Evans, First Regional Library System

The DeSoto County Social Services Coalition started off as a sub-committee of the Horn Lake Chamber of Commerce and has since spun off into its own entity. It is made up of members of various non-profits, religious organizations, government entities and for profit enterprises. We have monthly meetings where members get to share resources and network so we are all better informed about who in the community can meet a patron’s needs. This has been extremely beneficial to library staff because people often come to the library seeking help and we are able to make excellent referrals for many needs.
CAMP ABC: a Phonics Instruction Program for 4-6 Year Olds: Charlotte Moman, Jackson Hinds Library System

The Jackson Hinds Library System has begun offering Lippincott phonics instruction for 4-6 year olds during the regular Summer Reading Program. This program is designed to better prepare children for 1st grade and assist them in passing the Literacy Promotion Act testing in the 3rd grade. The project will focus on teaching phonics and phonemic awareness prior to the child entering school. This poster will highlight the successes and challenges of teaching phonics in a public library setting.

Digital Hattiesburg: Collaborating with Cultural Heritage Organizations to Increase Access to Materials: Jennifer Brannock, University of Southern Mississippi

In 2013, Jennifer Brannock participated in the Mississippi Library Commission’s Mississippi Library Leadership Institute. As part of the Institute, Brannock participated in training and completed a project to create a cultural heritage collaborative. Two years later, additional money was available to fund an extension of the earlier project. To further explore the South Mississippi Cultural Heritage Collaborative, Brannock requested funding to support a community digitization project. The project strives to provide access to materials held at smaller institutions around Hattiesburg. Community items are digitized and placed in the Mississippi Digital Library (http://www.msdiglib.org) for researchers around the world to access. This poster will provide information about the grant, project activities, and proposed outcomes.

Digitizing on a Budget: Increasing Access to Scrapbooks at the New Orleans Museum of Art: Amanda Myers, University of Southern Mississippi

This poster will describe the digitization process of old scrapbooks held in the Felix J. Dreyfous Library at the New Orleans Museum of Art. While many institutions would love to have a budget for digitization, many do not. This project will showcase a way in which preservation through digitization can be economically done with minimal staff or experience. It is the eventual goal of the library to partner with the Louisiana Digital Library to increase access to these historical materials.

Open Scholarship, the Final Frontier: Assessing the Openness of Anthropology Journals: Melody Dale, Nickoal Eichmann, Sheeji Kathuria, Mary Ann Jones, Mississippi State University Libraries

In 2008, the American Anthropological Association (AAA) announced its publishing apparatus move from the University of California Press to Wiley-Blackwell, causing increased subscription prices of some of its journals. Then, in 2012, the then-chief editor of American Anthropologist, Tom Boellstorff, encouraged future and current members of AAA to start laying the groundwork for an open access culture for the society. Since then, alongside the growing open scholarship movement, some members of the anthropology discipline continue to advocate open access for greater visibility and dissemination of anthropology research. Seeing this trend, several MSU librarians sought to examine the extent of openness in anthropology scholarship by creating a masterlist of anthropology related journals sourced from AAA, the World Council of Anthropological Associations, Journal Citation Reports and Scimago Scientific Journal Rankings. Four coders rated the journals according to openness: 0) nontransparent publishing options; 1) subscription only; 2) open access option; 3) completely open access with an article processing charge (APC); 4) delayed open access; and 5) fully open access (free to read and publish without embargoes). The expected result is that this information and openness matrix will help facilitate researchers in choosing open access publishing avenues, as well as provide a tool for librarians and information professionals consulting with researchers in the myriad of anthropology subdisciplines interested in open scholarship.
Sensory Story Kits: Erica McCaleb, Mississippi Library Commission

Patrons with visual impairments are a traditionally under-served library population. There are a number of complex issues as to why. Lack of resources, training, and familiarity with assistive technology are some common issues. Mississippi has an estimated 6,700 children who are visually impaired. When I received a grant to implement a community project as part of my participation in the Mississippi Library Leadership Program I knew that I wanted my project to better serve these children and their parents, educators and librarians. My project added 15 sensory story kits to the Mississippi Library Commission collection. The story kits were designed to enhance books for children with visual impairments. Each story kit contains one Print/Braille book and items related to the story. The items provide real-life representations of items found in the stories. These objects provide a way to add context and aid in comprehension and enjoyment of the story. The usefulness of these story kits is not limited to young children with visual impairments. Children of all ages and capabilities can use tactile and sensory exploration to enhance their understanding of concepts and ideas presented in books. These resources are made available to patrons of the Mississippi Talking Books Services and patrons with a Mississippi Library Commission card. The story kits were created to be accessible and useful by a wide range of Mississippians. By expanding the boundaries of library service and spotlighting resources this project aims to strengthen and develop the ties that Mississippi libraries have with their patrons with visual impairments.

Stronger from Within: Fawn Ussery and Antoinette Giamalva, Madison County Library System

In today’s world of budget cuts, Mississippi libraries are among the first and one of the worse to get hit. Collection development and binding are often the first to get sacrificed. It is important to repair and preserve the established collection of a library to keep a strong presence to the patrons. In libraries large and small and of all types, minor repair is a critical component in overall efforts to care for the collections of books and journals being housed. A small bit of well-placed book tape and liquid plastic can make a difference of a book’s life by decades. By preserving the collection, the library is making itself strong and fortifying itself against the financial crisis outside. Inner strength is crucial for survival for library large or small. Learn some helpful techniques with “live” visual aids while simple tips are shared to help make that difference.

Teaching Mississippi History through Involvement: Corinth Contraband Camp Symposium: Meg Henderson, Ulysses S. Grant Presidential Library, Mississippi State University

Many of us do not realize the history in our own backyards. Corinth is best known for the famous Civil War battle, but many Mississippians do not know that it was also home to the most successful Civil War contraband camp. From late 1862 to early 1864, slaves fled plantations and sought refuge in “contraband camps” – areas occupied by Federal troops. Union general Grenville Dodge enlisted refugees arriving in Corinth as teamsters, cooks, and laborers. He trained and armed the men to guard the new camp, and his efforts led to the formation of the 1st Alabama Infantry Regiment of African Descent, consisting of approximately 1,000 men. The camp resembled a small town, with streets, houses, a school, and a hospital. Today, a part of the camp is a historic site dedicated to the contrabands who lived there. In 2012, Shiloh National Military Park received a federal grant in a cooperative agreement with the Ulysses S. Grant Presidential Library at Mississippi State University to organize and administer a program to educate the public about this piece of history. The symposium, held April 17-18, 2014, included a visit to Corinth Middle School from living historians portraying Abraham Lincoln, Frederick Douglass and Ulysses S. Grant; presentations by historians in African American history; student essay contest; tour of the camp with local historical interpreters portraying life at the camp; “1863 press conference” with Lincoln, Douglass, and Grant; and Civil War era concert by musician Bobby Horton. Over 800 students and 1200 visitors attended the events, which were free. The partnership between the host organizations resulted in an educational and entertaining event that reached a diverse audience of historians, students, and community members. The poster will include photos from events, promotional materials, work plan, budget summary, and final report summary. It can serve as a guide for libraries looking to plan an event with outside organizations.

Special Thanks to the Family of Dorothy Shawhan

MLA would like to give special thanks to the family of Dorothy Shawhan for donating copies of her book, Lizzie, to all conference attendees. Check your conference bag for your copy. Lizzie won the MLA Author Award for fiction in 1996. Dorothy Sample Shawhan, a Mississippi educator and author, was born in Tupelo, Mississippi and raised in Verona, Mississippi. She joined the faculty at Delta State University as an English and journalism professor in 1981. She went on to become chair of the Department of Languages and Literature, serving in that position for fourteen years. She was inspired to write Lizzie when she discovered that a woman in Clarksdale printed a newspaper for women in the 1920’s. Her other books include the biography of Lucy Somerville Howorth which she co-authored with Martha Swain and Spirit of the Delta: The Art of Carolyn Norris, which presents the work of the self-taught artist Norris. Ms. Shawhan died after a brief illness in December 2014.

A Spoonful of Sugar Makes the Medicine Go Down
— Debbie Martin, Librarian/Media Specialist, Florence Middle School

Not many educators may know the power of Drawings in Google Drive. In this hands on session, we will learn how easy it is to facilitate learning by teaching students and teachers how to complete parts of the research cycle by using Google Drawing. This can be done independently or collaboratively and can be used in any subject area or age group.

Putting the Puzzle Together
— Erin Busbee – Director, Columbus-Lowndes Public Library System

This program seeks to provide attendees with a base knowledge of autism, current trends in the field of library services for special needs learners, resource collection development and management for this population, and programming for autistic individuals and their families. The Columbus-Lowndes Public Library System has been successfully serving their Autistic Community along with individuals displaying a variety of other special needs for the past two years. Programming has included family nights, support group meetings, speaker presentations, teen events, and an upcoming Art & Autism program. By listening to the needs of their community and creating responsible partnerships with the appropriate agencies, the library system now hosts a thriving resource center and programming that caters to the specific requirements of their specially-abled learners.

The Magnolia Award: Mississippi Children’s Choice
— Venetia Oglesby – Librarian, New Hope Elementary School

Members of the executive board will answer FAQ’s about the award including the timeline, how to participate and how to promote the award to your patrons. Nominations for the 2017 Magnolia Award will be highlighted. Attendees will experience what it’s like to be a part of a selection committee as they read from a selection of nominated titles and narrow the choices down to their top three.

...But We’ve Always Done It That Way! Creating and Implementing Successful Adult Library Programming
— Darnell Sheffield, First Assistant, Jackson-George Regional Library System
— Heather Stone, Outreach Coordinator, Jackson-George Regional Library System

This session will focus on moving out of the proverbial comfort zone, which is essential in planning and implementing programming, active and passive, that is appealing to adult patronage. Darnell and Heather will share a successful formula they have designed which has set them apart from other adult library programs. Their concept introduces new participants to what libraries now have to offer, encourages them to utilize all library services, and to become consistent and loyal patrons.

Virtual Reference Services in Level VI Higher Education Institutions in the SACS Region: A Content Analysis
- Michael Mounce – Reference/Instructional Services Librarian, Delta State University

In this presentation, Michael Mounce from Delta State University will present and discuss the results of a content analysis study which he recently conducted on the topic of virtual reference services in selected academic libraries. More specifically, Mr. Mounce will discuss virtual reference services, such as live chat, provided by the libraries of level VI higher education institutions which are accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS). Level VI institutions in the SACS region are those that grant four or more types of doctoral degrees. This study focused on 108 institutions and their libraries which are located in eleven states in the southeastern and south central U.S. and Mexico. A discussion of examples of virtual reference services found in the library literature will also be provided in this presentation. If you would like to learn more about virtual reference services in academic libraries, then this presentation is for you.
SCHOOL LIBRARY SECTION FEATURED SPEAKER

EXAMINING THE SACRED COWS OF SCHOOL LIBRARIANSHIP - TIFFANY WHITEHEAD, LIBRARIAN, CENTRAL MIDDLE SCHOOL IN BATON ROUGE, LOUISIANA

It is essential for librarians to make themselves indispensable within their schools. To do this, we must constantly seek new ways to better serve our students and teachers. Sometimes, this means taking a closer look at the traditional rules and expectations in school libraries to determine if they really are the best ways to meet the needs of our students. By taking a closer look at some of the sacred cows of school libraries, we will discover how some libraries are shaking things up to improve their services.

STRENGTHENING THE RESEARCH CONSULTATION WITH EVERNOTE

- JUSTIN KANI, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR / BUSINESS LIBRARIAN, MISSISSIPPI STATE UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES

The ever-evolving scope of the research landscape over the last decade has led to an increased interest in more in-depth research assistance and, as a result, the one-on-one research consultation has seen a parallel rise in demand by library patrons. To better assist patrons in the research consultation, I have implemented the use of Evernote, the digital note-taking application, as a means to help document and organize the consultation. This presentation will discuss how Evernote can strengthen the research consultation by helping patrons and librarians establish a shared workspace that scaffolds and documents patron outcomes and research.

ARE WE BORING YOU? USING FIRST-YEAR STUDENT FEEDBACK TO EVALUATE A LIBRARY ORIENTATION SESSION

- ASHLEY S. DEES, BUSINESS/REFERENCE LIBRARIAN
- MELISSA DENNIS, OUTREACH & INSTRUCTION LIBRARIAN, UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI

This interactive presentation is designed for academic librarians who teach orientation sessions for first year students. This program will include summaries and findings from the article: "It’s SO Boring: Improving Library Orientation Sessions for First-Year Students" published in the Summer 2015 issue of The Southeastern Librarian. Participants will find strength in numbers creating a #hashtag for twitter as part a “boring” activity. Prizes for winners!

LIBRARIANSHIP 101 REUNION

ACRL Section Featured Speaker
To be seen and heard: Realizing the benefits of diversity and responding to the needs of minority academic librarians - Jaena Alabi, Reference Librarian, Auburn University, Auburn, Alabama
Diversity continues to be an important topic of conversation for librarians--we talk about the importance of representing a variety of viewpoints in our collections and programs, and investigating ways that we as a profession can better reflect the demographics of our changing communities. This program explores the benefits of recruiting librarians from underrepresented groups, identifying their needs, and creating inclusive environments in which differences are seen as strengths to be taken advantage of rather than difficulties to be overcome or avoided. Listening to the voices of minority academic librarians and addressing their concerns will allow us as individuals to work more productively together, thus creating a stronger profession.

How Public Libraries Can Leverage E-Rate Funding by Bidding Out Services and Using a Consultant
– Patty Furr, Executive Director, Jackson Hinds Library System
– Millie Rodabaugh, E-Rate Consultant, Rodabaugh Education Services
The new Category 2 e-rate funding can make it possible for a public library to obtain funding to install fiber-optic cabling, network equipment, wireless access points and even maintenance funding. This seminar will discuss how the Jackson Hinds Library System used an outside consultant to bid out these services thus allowing the library system to install the above equipment and services at a small percentage of the actual cost.

Auto-Graphics User Group Meeting
– Tracy Carr, Library Services Director, Mississippi Library Commission
Auto-Graphics Staff
The first part of this session will be an update on the VUC, the statewide ILL service for public and community college libraries, and the second part will be an update on Verso, the Auto-Graphics automation system.

Doing Copyright Right For Education

– Lynndy Hurdle, Librarian, Oxford High School

This session will aid the school librarian in being knowledgeable in copyright regulations. The participant will gain information and skills to educate teachers, administrators, and students in the proper way to handle copyright issues.

Strengthening Library Services through Community Partnerships

– Barbara Goss, Branch Manager/Youth Specialist/Outreach Services & Jennifer Stephenson – Director, Greenwood-Leflore Public Library System

Public, school, college, and university librarians will learn details about partnerships and how they can provide solutions for their patrons and communities. Learn how partnerships are being used to provide tutoring, youth and adult programming, and even meals during the summer for children. Learn how to utilize your local extension office, colleges and universities, hospitals, and even local businesses for your library programs. Staff members of the Greenwood-Leflore Public Library Systems will show how partnerships can accomplish tasks with limited resources, respond to compelling issues, encourage cooperative interaction and conflict resolution, involve outside interests, and serve as an education and outreach tool.

University Directors Council Meeting

– Frances Coleman- Professor/Dean of Libraries, Mississippi State University Libraries

William Johnson: The Barber of Natchez

Join the members of Beta Phi Mu as we learn about William Johnson, the Barber of Natchez, presented by Natchez National Historical Park. Mr. Johnson was an African American slave-owner in Natchez, MS, who in 1830 established a barber shop and began to teach the trade to young black men in the community. He was also involved in the free black community and was a prominent member of their culture. Johnson chronicled his life as an African-American slave owner in a 14-volume journal spanning 16 years that has become a valuable source in the study of free blacks, African-American History and American History. His house on State Street in downtown Natchez was donated to the National Park Service in 1990 and opened as a museum detailing his life in 2005. The program will be followed by a short business meeting.

Partnering with iTech to Save the World: Digital Preservation Efforts at USM
— Elizabeth La Beaud, Digital Lab Manager, The University of Southern Mississippi

This session impresses the need for partnerships to preserve digital objects. Digital preservation cannot be undertaken single-handedly. It’s expensive, time consuming, and still doesn’t provide any guarantees. Our best chance is working together to combine resources, even if only information. This session will outline the partnership between University Libraries and iTech at The University of Southern Mississippi in regards to digital storage, data integrity, information security, metadata, and file sustainability. While this in-house partnership is a start, we need to work across institutions to ensure long term access and the make the world a safer place for digital objects.

Get to Know LearningExpress Library
— Tracy Carr, Library Services Director, Mississippi Library Commission

LearningExpress is more than just ACT prep tests. Come to this session and learn about how LearningExpress can enhance your library’s collection for patrons in grade 4 to adult!

Library Card Campaign
— Johnnette Bilbo – Librarian, Bay-Waveland School District, North Bay Elementary
— Adrienne Bradley, Public & Information Services Officer, Hancock County Library System

A library card for every child in the county: Learn how the public library partnered with the local public & parochial schools to sign children up for library cards and bring them to the library for a tour. See the methods including: - Materials - Information packets, lanyards, and incentives, - Methods - Preliminary meetings with schools, distribution of materials, processing and distributing the cards, - Marketing and Evaluations – School visits, media connections, prizes for highest-participating classes, statistics, and reports.

The Library’s 4 Stages of Community Collaboration
— Jacob Starks, Library Director, Neshoba County Public
— Tim Moore, Executive Director Chamber/Main Street, Community Development Partnership, Neshoba County

Founded upon collaborative inquiry theory, this program examines the fundamental process of creating effective partnerships with community groups, businesses and institutions through four stages: Forming, Storming, Norming and Performing. Program attendees will hear firsthand experiences from leaders of community groups partnered with the Neshoba library on different endeavors. Attendees will leave with ideas for untapped coalitions, a roadmap for establishing stronger partnerships, and an evaluative collaboration checklist.

Tweeting as a Virtual Reference Core Competency: A Fatal Flaw or the New Normal

- Sheej Kathuria, Assistant Professor, Social Sciences Librarian
- Amanda Clay Powers, Associate Professor, Coordinator of Research Services
Mississippi State University Libraries

Twitter allows Virtual Reference (VR) to move beyond answering questions into building community. Through expanding VR, the MSU Libraries’ very active Twitter account was linked to LibAnswers, pulling all mentions of the library into the system. This enabled any VR librarian to answer questions coming in via Twitter. Implementation revealed not all librarians were comfortable with Twitter, and those that were proficient were not comfortable speaking in the “voice” of the library. Using anonymous surveys of the VR librarians and a grounded theory analysis of the 650+ tweets mentioning the library’s account during the August – December 2014 collection period, strategies for managing this new VR core competency will be explored.

Library Math: Telling Your Story with Statistics

- Joy Garretson, State Data Coordinator, Continuing Education Training Coordinator, Mississippi Library Commission

In this program, learn methods for advocating for your library by using statistical information. Much of the content will come from experience administering the Annual Statistical Report for public libraries and from attending the Research Institute for Public Libraries; however, the information will be applicable to school and academic libraries as well.

Teens and Nonfiction: How to Make ‘Real’ Appeal!

- Cindy Williams – Librarian, Bay High School, Bay-Waveland School District

With the implementation of Common Core Standards, there is an increased interest in close reading and informational text. This presentation is intended for librarians and teachers who work with high school students and are curious about selecting materials that will capture student interest and entice them to read more nonfiction books. A bibliography will be provided for attendees.

United We Stand Virtually and Physically: Libraries Working With Each Other and the Community

- Antoinette Giamalva, Branch Manager, Ridgeland Library, Madison County Library System

United together libraries and communities can be strong for each other and attract patrons to come to community events. To be a united front, libraries can reach out subtly for supporters with the use of social media and personal touches. Methods that will be discussed are various social media sites, joining clubs and organizations, how to effectively persuade, and most importantly how to follow up and make an everlasting great impression.

Starting the Evolution: Launching Scholarly Communication Services at the MSU Libraries

Over the past year, the Mississippi State University Libraries have been involved in a Scholarly Communication Initiative encompassing four committees – Copyright, Open Access, Institutional Repository, and Data Management Services. The charge of these committees is to educate the Library faculty and staff and then the University community about the issues surrounding Scholarly Communication in academia. The committees are also charged with developing and recommending ongoing library services needed to support open scholarship at MSU. During this presentation you will hear about the overall initiative and its goals and objectives; committee chairs will share their process for creating competencies within these areas in the library and plans for rolling out the Initiative to the University community.

Toon Training: How We’ve Implemented Cartoons as Training Videos, and Why

- Derek Malone, Assistant Professor, Instructional Services Librarian, University of North Alabama

At the University of North Alabama we’ve transitioned a vast amount of our help desk training from handbook to cartoons and hybrid (cartoon and screenshot) videos. This presentation will cover what we have identified as quality areas for cartoon video implementation, our process of making those cartoons, and finally our assessment into the effectiveness of the new training program.

Not Just Playing with Dolls: Teaching Local History with American Girl Dolls

- Mona Vance-All, Archivist, Columbus-Lowndes Public Library System
- Erin Busbea, Director, Columbus-Lowndes Public Library System

In 2014, a patron gifted the Columbus-Lowndes Public Library System (CLPL) with two American Girl Dolls (AGD) in honor of her mother, who was a staunch supporter of the CLPL system. She hoped the library would be able to duplicate a lending program provided by her present library in Virginia. CLPL was able to contact the library and not only duplicate the lending program, but by the partnering of the Youth Services Coordinator and the Archivist, create public programming that highlights the history and growth of our county over time, educates about the importance of civil rights, and connects young learners to their MS roots. From the advertisement of the lending program, further patrons have been moved to donate additional AGD, bringing CLPL’s collection to 6 and making it possible for dolls to be available for checkout at each of the system’s four branches. Success of the programming can be measured in the number of phone calls garnered by staff on when the next one will be held!

The Trustee Section of the Mississippi Library Association program “Trustee Academy” features Donna McDonald, former President of United for Libraries (Friends of the Library USA) and currently the Director of the Arkansas River Valley Regional Library. A one hour workshop designed to help academic, public, school and special library trustees with the basis of trustee roles and responsibilities with a focus on fundraising, advocacy with funding authorities, community partnerships, library publicity through social media and other current topics. Door prizes will be awarded at the conclusion of the program. | Concordia Room, 2nd floor |
|            | Magnolia Steering Committee Meeting
- Frances Coleman, Chair, MAGNOLIA Steering Committee | Board Room, 1st floor |
|            | Library Science Education at Southern Miss: A History of Survival and Growth (SLIS)
- Matthew Griffis, Ph.D., Assistant Professor, USM School of Library and Information Science
This fall will mark the 50th anniversary of the graduate program in library science at the University of Southern Mississippi. SLIS will be commemorating the occasion with a number of events to honor alumni, students, and supporters. This session, led by the department’s newest junior professor, will recall the story of the School of Library and Information Science at Southern Miss, from 1926 (when the school, then known as the Mississippi State Teacher’s College, first offered library science courses) to present day. The presentation, accompanied by historical photos, will emphasize the department’s bridging of a variety of “divides” in the 1990s and 2000s, ultimately growing from a small selection of course offerings in the 1920s into the state’s only ALA accredited program with graduates working in libraries, archives, and museums across the country and around the world. | Memphis Room, 2nd floor |
| 10:30 - 11:30 | General Session - Todd Bol, Creator and Executive Director, Little Free Library
David Dubard, Academic Regional Sales Manager from platinum sponsor EBSCO and Executive Director of the Mississippi Library Commission, Susan Cassagne, will welcome MLA members to the second MLA General Session featuring Todd Bol of Little Free Library. Todd H. Bol created the very first Little Free Library – a front-yard book exchange – in 2009 to share books with his neighbors. After seeing the community's positive reaction to the miniature library, Bol built 30 more and gave them away to a broad range of neighborhoods. Today 25,000 Little Free Libraries now stand in front yards all across the globe – from Iceland to Pakistan to Tasmania – strengthening neighborhoods, spreading literacy and the love of reading, and bringing people together. Sponsored by the Special Libraries Section | Natchez Room, 1st floor |
This session will contain multiple "Lightning Talks" (5-minute presentations) on topics displayed in the Poster Hall. So come and get inspired at the speed of light!

FROM REJECTION TO RENEWAL

- KIM GUNTER, LIBRARY MEDIA SPECIALIST, FLORENCE HIGH SCHOOL

We will discuss ways to breathe new life into a library that has become obsolete in the minds of the administration, faculty and staff of a school. This discussion will include PR campaigns and outreach plans for faculty and staff members that are overworked and stressed. We will also look at tools that can be used to streamline your collaboration efforts, such as Google Calendar, Google Forms, and other web-based programs.

COPYRIGHT INITIATIVES AT THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI

- SARAH MANGRUM, ACCESS SERVICES LIBRARIAN, UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES – THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI
- ELIZABETH LA BEAUD, DIGITAL LAB MANAGER, UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES – THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI
- JOSH CROMWELL, INSTITUTIONAL REPOSITORY COORDINATOR, UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES – THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI

University Libraries at The University of Southern Mississippi has taken a proactive approach to educating the campus community about copyright concerns affecting scholarly communications. Colleagues from across several library units worked together to form a copyright task force to recommend general copyright policy guidelines for the institution, create a Web presence giving users a one-stop information source for copyright issues, and implement educational programming for the campus community. The work of the task force has proven these units are stronger together and have the ability to make a larger impact on the campus community than individually. The presenters will outline the common copyright concerns encountered by University Libraries units, the creation of the taskforce and online presence that gives users a one-stop information source, and future educational initiatives.

Moodle Your Noodle
- Kim Harvey, Staff Development & Training Coordinator, Jackson-George Regional Library System
- Janet Beatty, Business Manager, Jackson-George Regional Library System
- Stacey McElroy, Technologies Services Manager, Jackson-George Regional Library System

At JGRLS, we use a Learning Management System called Moodle. It is an open source application that allows for the creation of courses, student registration, grading and evaluation. We originally used this site for Applicant Testing and New Employee Training. Once we saw the value of this application, we expanded it to supplement our Public Training. We now have it available “24/7” from any internet connection. Many schools are already using Moodle, and you may have experienced users in your own community that can help you set up a Moodle site in your library!

The Changing Landscape of Scholarly Publishing
- Joyce Shaw, Head of Gunter Library, Gunter Library/University of Southern Mississippi
- Jorge Brown, Access Services Librarian, Gulf Coast Library/University of Southern Mississippi

Scholarly publishing and the impact of open access is a challenging and changing landscape for authors and the libraries that serve them. The presentation will discuss how research libraries are responding to and engaging with authors as they navigate this new environment. The modern publishing environment includes numerous promises and perils including predatory publishers, pay for open access models, and new metrics for evaluating impact. The resulting challenge is translating and communicated these complicated and complex emerging issues to authors, researchers, faculty, students, and administrators.
